EDITORIAL

You've looked at all the photos, read the Churinga Awards, laughed at the Classic Quotes and now, six months later, with nothing left to read but a very old issue of New Idea, you have decided to pick up the 1992 Churinga and read the Editorial. Well thank you very much and for those of you who actually read this page in 1992, you must have truly been bored.

You're probably perplexed as to why I view this article with low esteem, but I have read editorials from the past and I will acknowledge that they are not always as entertaining as the daily comic strips or as enthralling as an episode of Home and Away. I can understand why you may choose to overlook this seemingly unimportant page, in pursuit of more exciting trivia to feast those overworked brain cells on. Well if you've read this far I am going to have to keep this Editorial gripping enough, so as you remaind interested to the very last full stop.

You know, I believe that we have a pretty fantastic school. I am tired of schools that breed healthy young individuals who are full of school spirit and enthusiasm. Who wants to go to a school where everyone gets involved and joins in with school activities? I love it when the SRC tries to be really cool by organising loser activities like fun runs and then the whole school bands together and puts in a huge amount of effort to not even support their wasted attempt at raising money.

I think that we're lucky to have a common room that doubles as a garbage dump and it is great that we can use the furniture as fuel to entertain pyromaniacs. I don't know about the guys' toilets, but I know the girls have some pretty groovy graffiti in their toilets. There must be some witty people at this school, because the vendetta campaigns on the cubicle walls of the girls' toilets, by the common room, made for some sensational reading. It was damn rotten of whoever it was responsible for re-painting the walls, because there was fantastic literature in the making there.

I also believe that we really have a school to be proud of. How many schools could you find, where the end of year activities have to be organised in such a way, that alcohol consumption by students is minimised? It's the end of the year and that means celebration time! There's no other alternative than to drink loads of cheap alcohol, go to the final day celebrations, make a complete idiot out of yourself and then vomit in front of teachers who once respected you and friends who just want to leave you passed out under a chair. Yeah, give me a bottle of Spumante!

It suits me fine that this school lacks unity and enthusiasm, because why should I want to do anything for the betterment of the school. It's not my responsibility, that's what the SRC is for. Besides, I haven't got time to go in some stupid fun run and I'm not interested in reading the school newspaper. What a waste of money! What difference does it make if I sit back and do nothing, someone else will pick that rubbish up, or join that committee, or be friendly to that exchange student, or stop that person from stealing that wonderful poster from that classroom...

So what do you think, agree with me? There's a pretty good chance most of you think I'm damn close to the mark. That's the problem with this school, people really do think in this way. There are too many people saying, "Oh well," and "Who cares?" instead of "That's great," and "Yes, sure." It is unfortunate, but it seems that as the student population becomes bigger and more diverse, we are developing a school that has little responsibility or enthusiasm among its students.

Well that's just my opinion and what does my opinion matter among 1500 odd students? I think I'll just shut up and stop preaching. Why should I care anyway, I won't even be here next year?

Still reading on? Maybe you're looking at that issue of New Idea, thinking surely it must be more exciting. Anyway, it's another year over; another year to add to the never-ending catalogue of memories stored forever in your mind. Thanks for reading Churinga 1992 and I hope you consider it worthy enough to show your great-grandchildren many years from now.

Churinga in the Pipeline

About every time we make the ends meet, someone moves the ends.

Originality is the art of concealing your sources.

WISE MAN SAY: NEVER JOIN CHURINGA COMMITTEE.

PRINCIPAL'S REPORT

CHURINGA: How would you sum up the year, 1992, at Launceston College?

MR. LANE: In one word, HECTIC! The transition to TCE syllabus teaching methods, a further increase in enrolments - which also means more staff - lack of appropriate facilities in some areas, the introduction of a core of studies in the curriculum, the first ripples of the effects of a number of recent enquiries into post-compulsory education and training - these are some of the happenings that have led teachers to be very busy. And of course, there was the National Conference on Post-Compulsory Education held here in May.

CHURINGA: Was the Conference a success?

MR. LANE: By all reports, an outstanding success. Our catering students were a hit. They provided the morning and afternoon teas and the lunches, and catered for the major welcoming function on the first day of the Conference. I was really proud of them and their efforts.

CHURINGA: How did the Conference come to be held at the College?

MR. LANE: Well, it was due to be held in Hobart, but they decided that 1993 was going to be too busy a year for them and wanted to pass it on to Queensland. I said, "No thankyou, we'll have it in Launceston and we'll organise it."

CHURINGA: A lot of students were impressed by greenery in the Hall for the Conference. What happened to it MR. LANE: The trees were hired from the Launceston City Council. Julienne Colman handled that. They went back to the Council.

CHURINGA: What have been the major problems this year?

MR. LANE: Certainly the Art Department facilities have been a big worry. Thank goodness things are about to get under way to remedy that. Also the wet winter has emphasised our lack of an adequate student centre, but from a staff point-of-view, the tremendous workload and pressures arising out of going into the TCE without adequate lead time for course preparation have been the big problems. Your teachers have done a marvellous job. You probably don't fully realise it.

CHURINGA: Can you tell us about the redevelopment programme? Will it go ahead?

MR LANE: I am certain it will go ahead. The government has acknowledged the need and set aside money this year with a projected further allocation next year. Altogether $2.6 million has been earmarked. That will go close to providing for our most visible, pressing problems, that is for Art, Music and student and staff amenities. The student centre will be developed around rooms 38,39,40 and 41 and will be linked to a new cafeteria which will be part of the new buildings to be built next to the computing area. I think students will be very pleased with both.

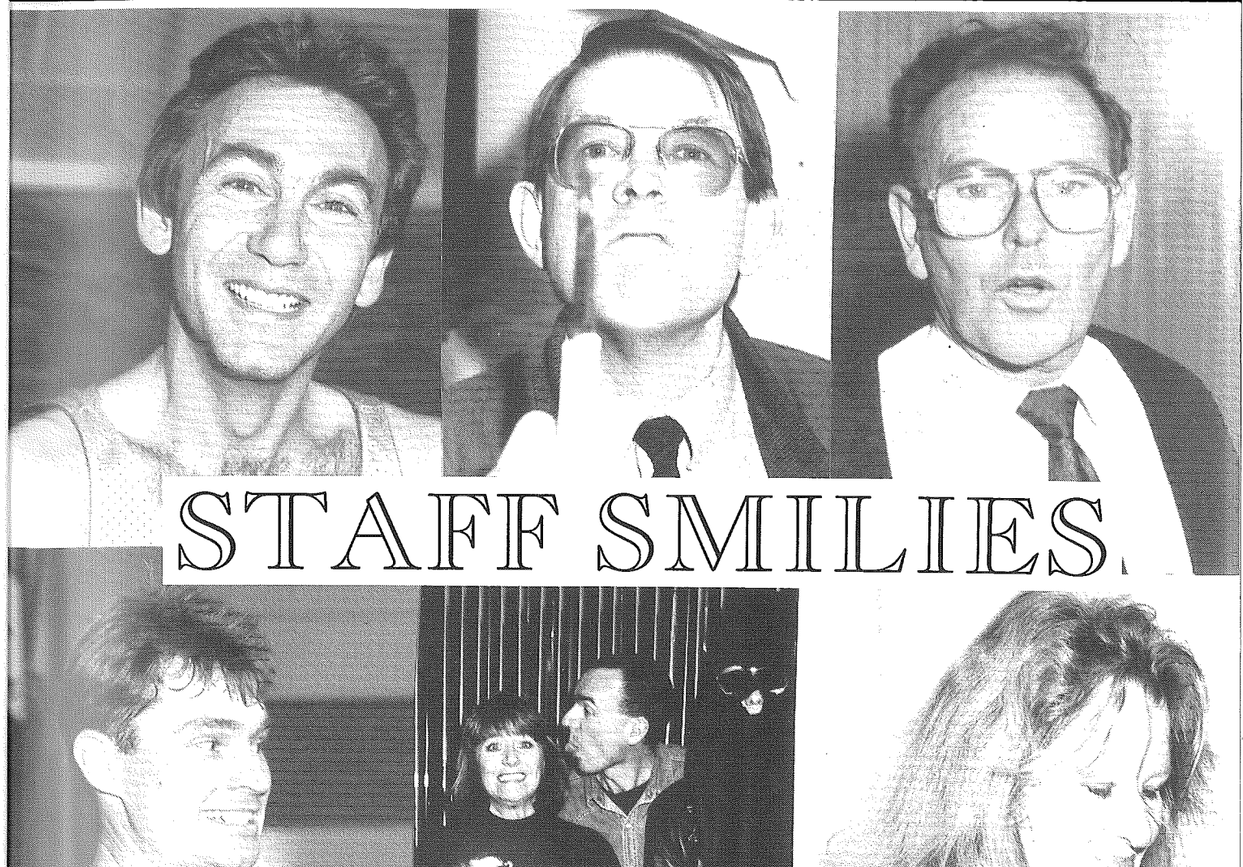

CHURINGA: Have you recovered from being "mugged in Memphis" yet?

MR LANE: I think so. I no longer keep looking over my shoulder as I walk down the street. But it was a lesson - what teachers call experiential learning. By the way have you seen Mr Henning lately?

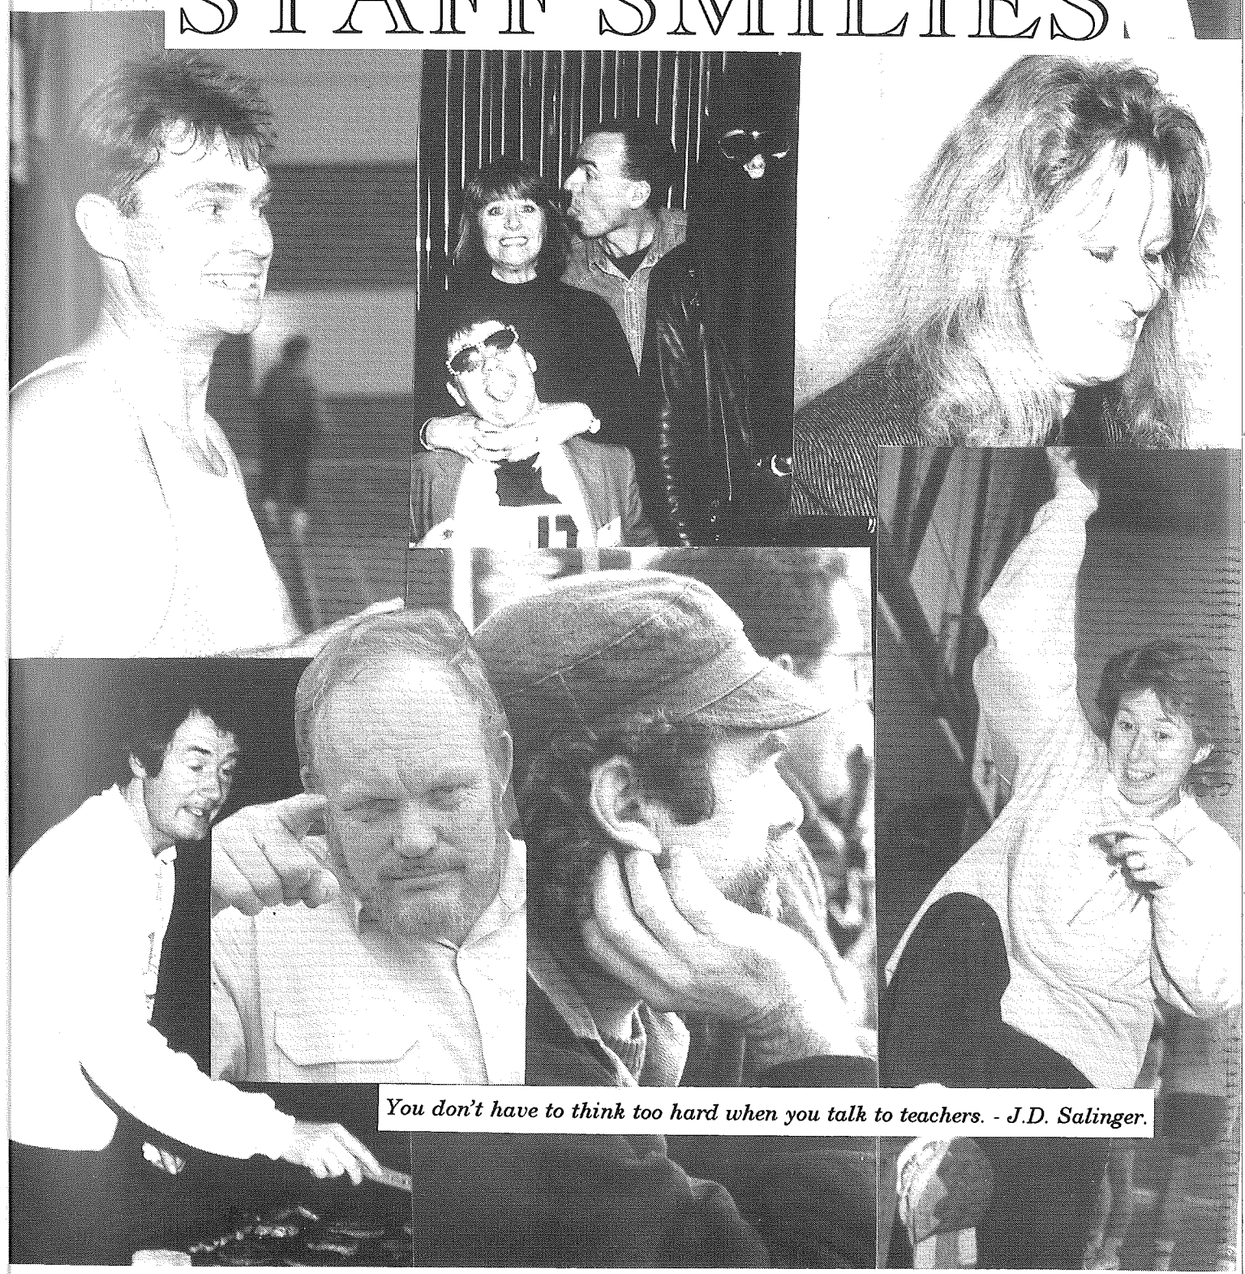

Ramona and her lovely assistant, Col.

Col's Law: Thinly sliced cabbage.

S.R.C. REPORT

Hello.

Well, it's the all important SRC evaluation of the year. I'll spare you the rigmarole of how good or bad the year was — as for that you can make your own conclusions, but I won't pass up the chance to end with a few words of inspiration.

Firstly, thank you. Thank you to everybody who helped and supported the SRC this year because when twelve people, most of whom don't know each other, are told that they are this year's Student Representative Council, and left to do whatever SRCs do, that little bit of help and direction by no means goes astray. No big list of names, just a sincere thanks.

And the year is now over. No-one could argue it wasn't a busy one. Discos, debates over condom vending machines, red nose day, musical chairs, jelly wrestling (no comment), slave day (especially no comment — except I will say that 'Nutella' was not made for spreading on human chests), overcrowding issues with the government, assemblies, safety house button selling, presentation day, lockers, Inter-College Day, the breakfast program, parent-teacher evenings, the hair show, the ball — is to name but a few of the projects in which the SRC were actively involved.

And doesn't time fly, especially when you've really having fun? It seems like only yesterday seventeen presidential candidates told 1800 people to vote for them.

Why they picked me will probably go down as the eighth wonder of the world, especially considering Ben Powell said he was ready to "boil bums in hot marmalade" and Gilbert Astorga was more than happy to inform us about his "magnificently proportioned body". Gus Clark discussed beer on tap in the common room, and Jeremy Hollister reminded us that, with relatives like Green Independent Di Hollister, who could possibly vote for anyone else? Emma Churchill — the only child who was really good at getting whatever she wanted — and you'd think Dave Campbell in his third attempt at the presidency would have finally cracked it.

With 1992 coming and going in about five minutes, it's funny to stop and think about all that's happened.

And honestly, most of us, most of the time worked pretty hard to do our jobs, and do them well. And yeah, you're going to cop criticism in any case. I never expected not to, but for the record, believe me when I tell you we were quite dedicated in what we were doing.

Also thanks to the C A reps who actually fulfilled their duties (all six of them!).

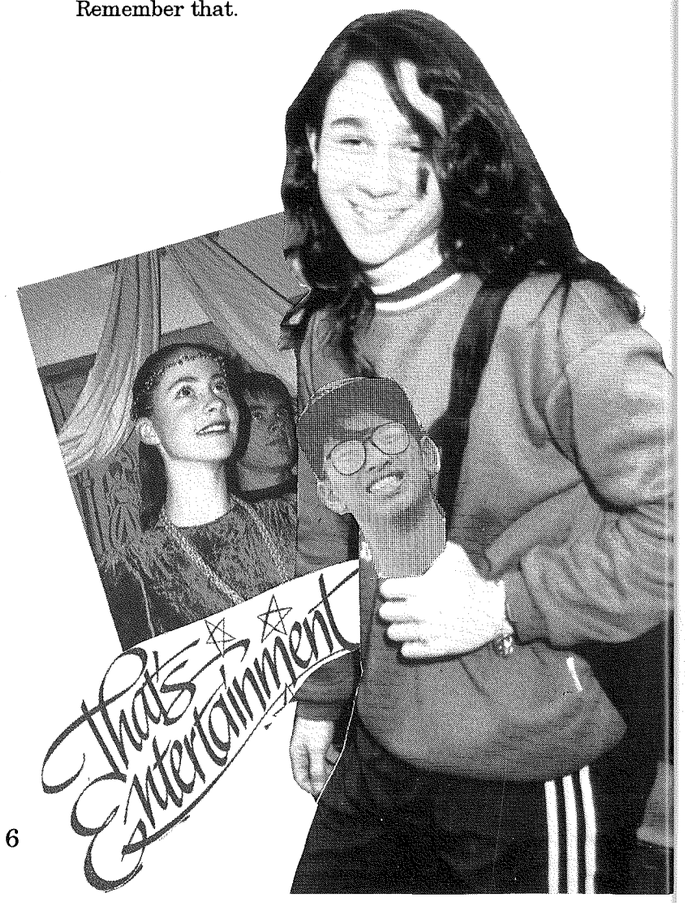

And to the SRC, thanks for accepting and putting up with my leadership, but more importantly, thanks for providing me with many laughs and good times — many of which will take a lot of forgetting.

Thank you everyone.

Cheers,

Rob Thomas

Oh yeah, those words of inspiration. I once heard a famous person (who is so famous I can't ever remember who it was) say the following: "If you think you can, you can. If you think you can't, then you're right again." Remember that.

FRONTLINE REVIEW

I'm sitting here trying think of an opening sentence that will make you read this article. You see, that crucial first sentence may mean the difference between you reading this piece of waffle and you turning to the C.A photos to check how photogenic you are.

That's the dilemma that we, the Frontline/Churinga Committee have had all year. WHAT INTERESTS YOU?

We found that trying to cater for everyone's tastes in a student newspaper was extremely difficult, especially considering the diversity of people here.

But we persevered, and came up with many editions of Frontline in 1992. For those of you who bought a copy, we hope you enjoyed and appreciated all the hard work we dedicated journalists put into it. For those of you who didn't, well that's your bad luck.

One of the highlights of the year must have been the "Rob Gets Head Job" edition which peeved the higher ranks of the school administration. We have no idea why. This edition was also plagued by the particularly nasty 'missing J' disease. Everyone thought it was a bit of an oke but Clinton did a good ob trying to fix it.

One of the biggest scoops of the year was our discovery that Col had been mugged in Memphis. Once we got our grubby little fingers on that postcard the story was all around the College. We were even mentioned on the Front Page of the Sunday Examiner! But in all seriousness, it must have been a traumatic experience and we deeply sympathise with you, Col.

Something that made our job a lot easier this year was the Macintosh Classic II in the Frontline room. Mind you, we had to beg and plead with many a person to get one. Throughout the year it was used heaps by Frontline, Churinga and committee members doing homework, and by some very frustrated Business Studies teachers.

This did wonderful things for the layout of Frontline. Computer genius and desk-top publishing extraordinaire, Clinton Moloney, spent hours upon hours arranging text so it looked nice on a page.

Of course, we earned some money doing Frontline through advertising and sales. Kent Fordham, soon to be the next treasurer of Australia, handled the money brilliantly. We haven't decided what to do with the money (Yes Col, we will buy the school a present) but I'm sure we'll think of something.....ha, ha, ha.

Andrew Hugo is the mystery man responsible for the Crosswords (or is it Crosword?). Catherine Putnam is the comedienne who wrote some of the funny little articles throughout the year. Nelle Voss, Michelle Beg and Sarah Allen are responsible for the bad luck you've had all year as the "Astrological Gods of the Universe". Michelle was also our on-the-spot sports journalist. Angela East did some art work and photo collages. Karen Webb was a general all-round-star, Kate Silverwood was Cousin Kate and I'm not sure if Mr. M Moonshine wants to be identified. Sam Routley was our resident creative specialist. Rachel Scott, Amanda Rushton, Amanda East and Jenna Corkery were also extremely valuable members of the team - doing all sorts of stories. Also thanks to the very patient Shane How, the very excellent Steve Tully and the guiding hand of Mr Bernd Meyer.

Well, I'll go now. Thanks for reading this waffle. Good luck to next year's Committee - you'll need it!

DEBATING REPORT

Launceston College has been fortunate to have some very talented debaters. The numbers enrolled in Debating for recreation were low but as they say, it's quality and not quantity that it important.

Inter-College Day is the biggest opportunity we have to compete with other colleges. This year the day was very much enjoyed by all debaters. We had two teams and, although we did not win, both teams performed well and will have benefitted from the experience.

The interest expressed in debating this year was mainly by year eleven students. Hopefully this means that Launceston College debaters will increase in number in 1993.

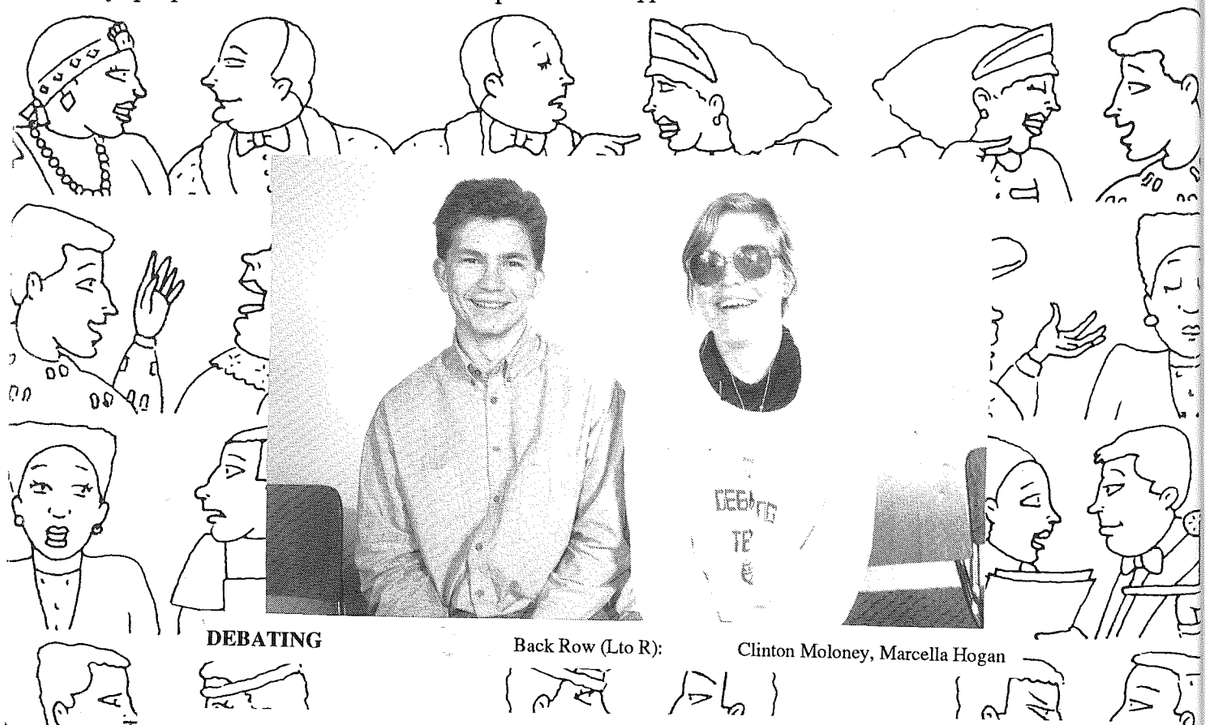

Topics were put in by all participating colleges and each debate had a topic drawn out of a hat. Some very interesting and enjoyable topics were debated. One which may sound easy but was quite challenging and fun was that "Meat pies, kangaroos and football are Australia". One of Launceston College's teams debated on the negative, and won.

Many people do not realise how helpful debating is in everyday life. Being able to debate helps to build confidence in people as fears of public speaking are overcome. Debating on the side of an issue that you do not believe in teaches you to look at both sides of an argument and makes you generally more aware. Probably the most important skill is that of being able to formulate clear and concise arguments. As we should all have found out by now, this is a very much needed skill in essay writing.

A debate was organised in third term between Alanvale and Launceston College. This was a student organised event and was a great opportunity for some extra competition.

So as you can see, the Launceston College debaters don't just go along to fire up and have an all in brawl (not all the time anyway). They learn important skills as well as enjoying a good argument.

Debating at Launceston College would not go ahead if it wasn't for the dedication of teachers, Geoff Best and Richard Lewandowski. We owe a lot to them for their continued help and support.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

"How can a young person keep his way pure? By living according to your word." Psalm 119, 9, IV.

The above outlines one of the main reasons behind the Launceston College Christian Fellowship this year. Christian Fellowship is a group of students, organised by Liz King, who got together every week throughout '92 to amongst other things, study the Word, have fun, help others, and uphold and help each other in what we believe in front of other students.

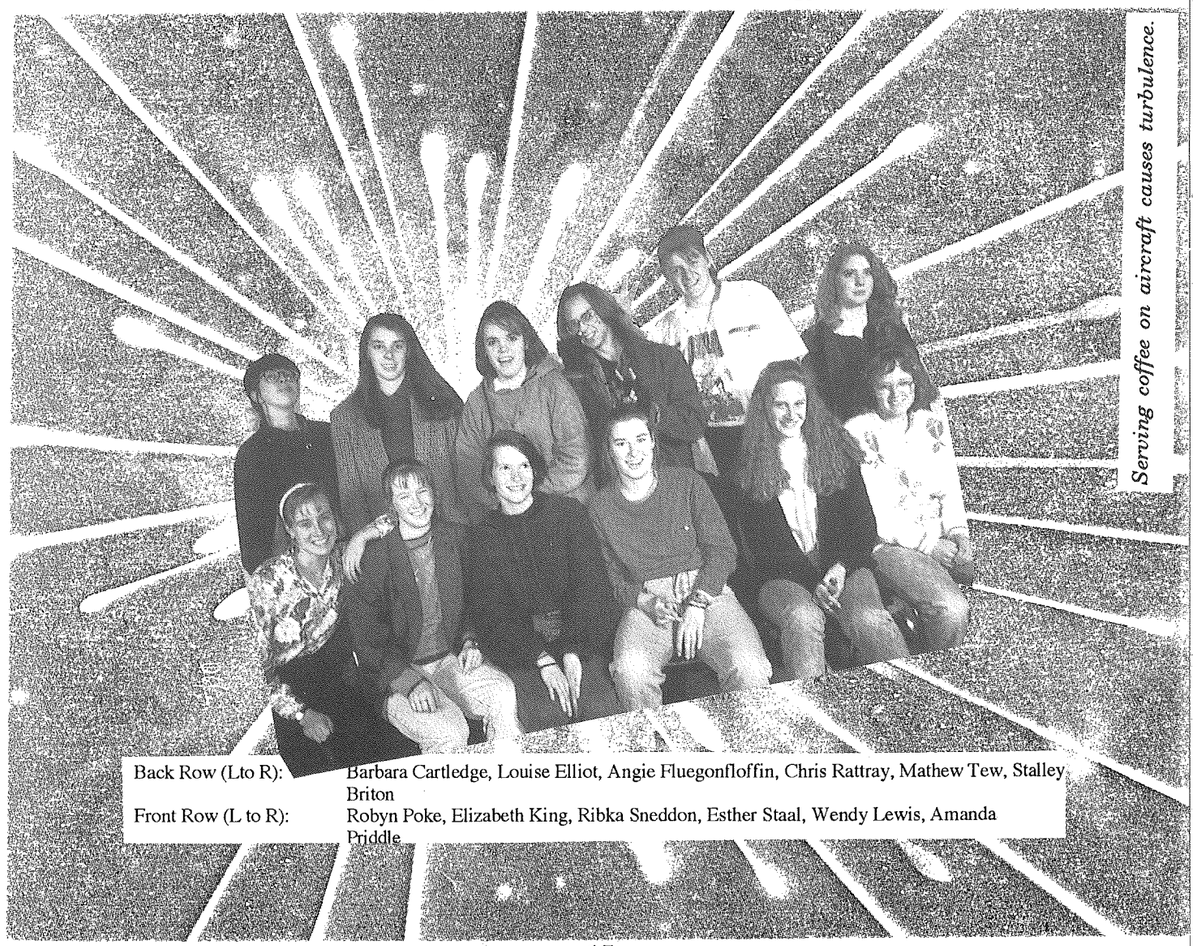

Compared to last year the number of regulars who attended the meetings was a miracle in itself. Average number of people was fifteen to twenty compared to last year's average of five and as a consequence a lot more things happened; recess prayer groups (sorry to those in room 40 who we might have accidentally inconvenienced), lunch-time questionnaire work around College, and fellowship and fun within the group.

Presbyterian youth pastor, Nello Barbieri, and his assistant, joined in with all activities and gave us invaluable advice and friendship.

Those who came to the Friday lunch-time meetings were a diverse bunch of people from a large number of churches, home towns and backgrounds. Each person's different experience lent itself to productive discussion and understanding of other people's problems and what we could do to help solve them.

This year has been a good one, a healthy introduction, I hope, to an enthusiastic group of young Christians who can help wash LC clean of religious apathy in '93.

RADIO PRODUCTION

On the afternoon of the 21st of May this year (1992, for those who don't have a calender handy), L.C. opened its contribution to the growing media ranks.

During the summer Room 28 went from being a language room (where we former German students had the pleasure of watching such great names as James Boden and Mark Decker in action), to being a well equipped radio production studio.

Room 28 was officially opened by M.H.R. Warwick Smith, Opposition Minister for Communications. Many other politicians such as Senator Jocelyn Newman, Tasmanian Minister for Education and the Arts, John Beswick, and local Members Sue Napier, Fran Blaydel and Tony Benneworth took time out of their busy schedules to attend the opening.

Members of the media community also attended the opening to inspect where their future employees may come from.The following media heavyweights attended the openings ;John Seaman - Manager of 7LA, David Sice - Secretary of City Park Radio, David McQuestin from E.N.T., Ray Sangston - Regional Manager of the A.B.C., K.A. Findlay and his son Robert - owners of the T.B.N. network, and Rob Kuiper from Way-FM. Representatives from the University of Tasmania's Launceston campus, The Examiner, the A.B.C., and a few Northern high school principals also attended.

L.C. principal Col Lane, and assistant principals, as well as Radio Production students who volunteered their time to host the opening, were there to make sure everything ran smoothly.

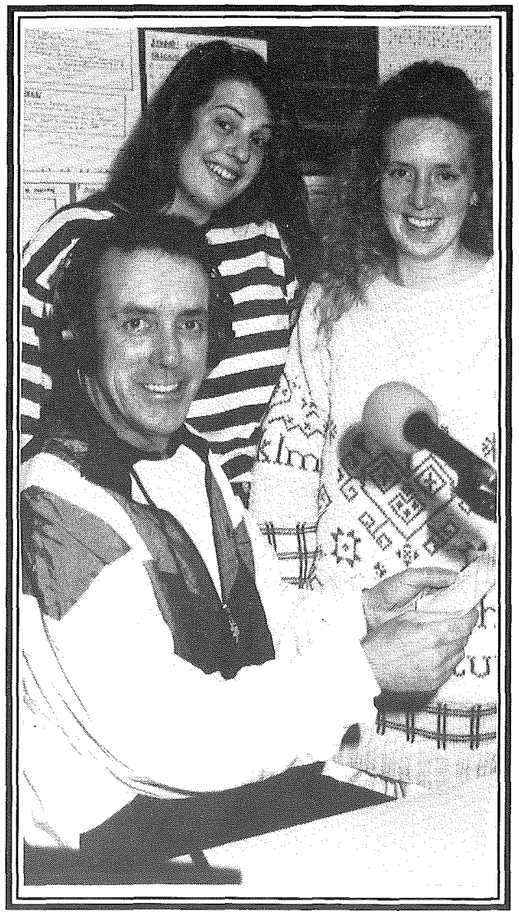

After speeches by Mr. Smith and Mr. Lane the studio was opened and guests had the opportunity to look over the facilities. Students explained the particular functions of the equipment and many of the guests mentioned they were most impressed by the studio and the students. Press releases made sure the opening had exposure and articles appeared in various media formats about the opening on the following day.

Thanks for this year go to Rex McLean and Jeanette Gatenby. Rex is the technician and engineer (not to mention the good looks) behind our first successful year of Radio Production. In recognition of Rex's invaluable efforts, it was decided to name the studio after him. We now have a beautiful plaque commemerating the fact. Thanks for everything Rex !

And last but most definitely not least, a thankyou must go to Jeanette Gatenby who has tirelessly taught the first year of a gruelling course. Thanks for the stress Jeanette !

Radio Production is an interesting, jam - packed 'C' course aimed at giving students interested in a career in the media a good background and valuable experience.

ROCK EISTEDDFOD

Over one hundred people auditioned for the fifty-two dance places in this year's Be Your Best Rock Eisteddfod team. Sixteen people joined the backstage crew and a further four made up the support crew (dance teacher Jerril Rechter's self-professed 'right arm'). Of those who were successful, Jerril estimates that only ten to twenty had dance experience.

"The priority was how each person looked as a performer," she explains.

Undoubtedly there was some pressure to live up to last year's State final win. However, this year's Eisteddfodites wanted to produce something completely different. Eventually they agreed on the way humans treat each other for material gain or to be precise, The World: We Began in Harmony, Then Came Industrialisation, Is There Still Time for Our Salvation?

The curtains open on a huge, glistening silver screen (made from videotape of A Country Practice, I kid you not) which soundlessly glides apart to reveal a rock formation behind rows of undulating bodies, accompanied by sounds of waves crashing on shore. Suddenly Grace Jones' Slave to the Rhythm interrupts, the waves roll away and a group of majestic golden birds separate from the rocks and take the stage. The stage metamorphoses, the dance progresses through a mechanical section. Hands claw through the three part screen which swings around to reveal a brightly spraypainted eye as the dance builds in momentum. After several breathtaking lifts and other choreographical feats, the lights dim, the music fades and pinpricks of torchlight waver on stage as a human globe rotates slowly.

Although Jerril was in charge (and in every conversation you ever have with these people!), all of the dancers were welcome to contribute to the choreography. The emphasis was on teamwork and achieving personal bests rather than on winning.

Rehearsals were regular from the end of February and although progress was slow at first (four new movements in one eight hour session!), perseverance paid off on the night(s). Each member of cast and crew was required to sign a contract of commitment. However, for various reasons we ended up with a cast of forty-two.

The northern competition, during which LC moved and grooved its way to the Gold CD and $500, was held at the Silverdome on Tuesday 14 July. During daytime rehearsals LC finally discovered its team spirit and led the other schools dancing enthusiastically in the aisles, despite the sub-zero conditions. Before the evening performance, amidst the glitter of costumes and makeup, the last minute rehearsing and various symptoms of excitement, everyone gathered in the communal changeroom to join hands and close their eyes in one of Jerril's famous 'vibe' sessions, concentrating on calm and positive thoughts. Most knew the competition was fierce and rumour has it we didn't exactly thrash the hooded robes off Scotch Oakburn (one point!).

A word of advice from one unsuspecting observer: if you don't enjoy being hugged silly, don't hang around this bunch in their hour of triumph!

The following Friday the cast, crew, dismantled set, props, various associated whatnots and a busload of supporters travelled to Hobart for the State final. Spirits were high and the LC team gave their best ever performance, which was truly a sight to be seen.

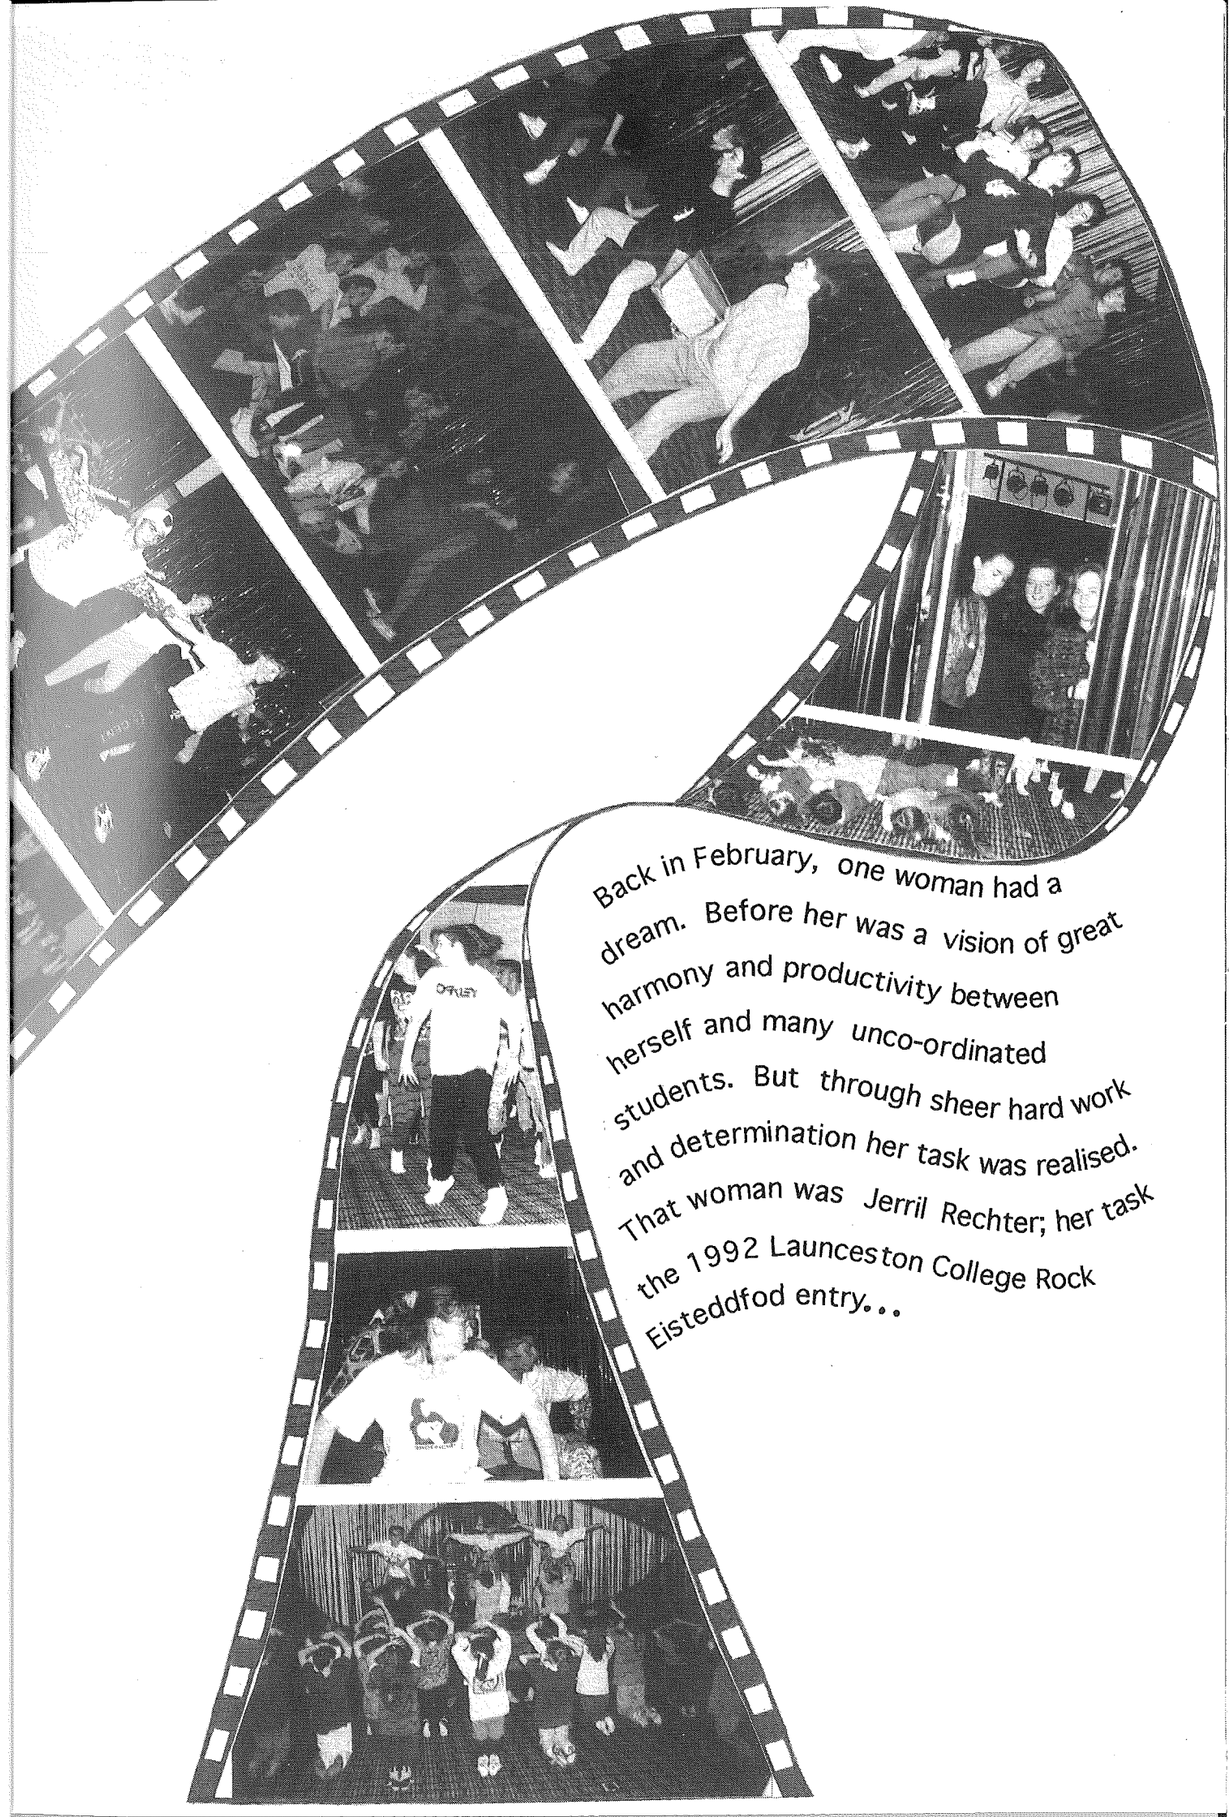

Ironically, Jerril remembers being alarmed at the hesitant reactions of College students and staff at a lunchtime preview performance in the gym!

STUDENT APATHY

If you thought this year was a tough test for everybody at Launceston College, next year may prove to be even more of a drag.

Although the student population estimates for next year are around the 1700 mark, LC will face the same unresolved problems as it did this year.

But what people don't realise is that here in little old Tasmania we are experiencing a first for Secondary education. You see, most other states have high schools that cater for students from grade seven right through to grade twelve, which means that colleges like ours are simply not needed.

But with youth unemployment so high, and the labour market so competitive, more and more students are staying on to complete their education. This leaves institutions like ours with a growing population problem.

Now, if we have the available resources, and space, that's fine, we can cope. But as the recession tightens all forms of government spending, then education often ends up on the bottom of the priority pile. God knows why, we keep telling these guys, "we are the future" and we are.

But we mustn't complain too much, after all, good old Mr Beswick, Minister for Education and the Arts, this year, after much nagging, kindly allocated $2, 611,000 to complete the redevelopment programme halted in 1989.

Besides the problem of space and resources, we are also facing a less tangible, but equally worrying phenomenon, the Student Apathy Dilemma (SAD).

SAD has been on the increase, steadily but surely, over the last couple of years. It is directly related to the complete lack of school spirit, which has a flow on effect to all areas of school activities. The only school spirit that is visible is the wearing of school clothing and the support in school sports teams.

When you think logically about it though, there is little wonder that the school spirit has gone out the window. In an institution this big, it is hard to find a spirit common to all people. There are just so many different groups here, and they all have different ideas about what this school is for and why students are here (bludging, to gain academic excellence, to make public appearances). And why should students have to be hassled to have a school spirit when most are under a lot of pressure trying to study and socialise effectively?

But this year, SAD and the lack of school spirit have gone beyond a joke. Just ask the SRC. They had to cancel Miss Matric. The turn up to the Musical Islands was pathetic. The Fun Run was cancelled and the Coles Docket competition is still not getting anywhere significant. The school newspaper averaged sales of 400 for each edition - although up on last year's, theoretically we should be selling at least 1600.

Maybe the problem lies partly with our school motto. I mean, who knows what it is, let alone what it means. For those of you who don't know, it is "Old Glories - New Visions".

Hmmm. I don't know about you, but this means little to me, and seems quite irrelevant to an institution like this. It reflects nothing educational. I'm not saying that these thoughts are not admirable and desirable. But relevancy and meaningfulness are paramount in a school motto if it's ever going to mean anything.

So, the answer is choose another one. Defy tradition and think of something that reflects the modern Launceston College. It should be a motto that shows that this is an institution of academic excellence, as well as a place that caters for vocational training and letting the individual get what they want out of it. This is a start to solving the problem of the lack of school spirit and defeating SAD.

This is a problem that must be addressed by next year's SRC. If they don't solve it, they will find that most of the activities organised will not have student support.

L.C. BOARDRIDERS

We're not a bunch of winos really. This year had been one of eagerness to hit the surf. Also, of chewing through the gas; rain, rain and more rain; discount from St. Helen's Tigerbarn Supermarket, and arguments over who ripped off the Boardrider's account the most (Bruce Sheckleton...not to mention any names of course).

If members were asked to remember highlights, they would be sure to think of Darren Lewis' common phrase of "Tama is goin off" or "Has anyone gotta car?" By the way Daz, how much money do you owe everyone?

Was the beach invaded by fireflies? No, it was just the boys having the safe game of "Who Can Hit The Most People With Red Hot Coals?" or following up their favourite pastime (except surfing of course), "Fire Jumping". Then there were always the games of Bodgee or Tree-jumping, possum snotting or simply going raucous around the camping grounds at Beer Barrel Beach.

It's been an interesting experience being one of the few females in the club. Strange as it may seem, we were always the ones to clean, cook and act as charity cases when the boys had spent all of their money on beer the first night.

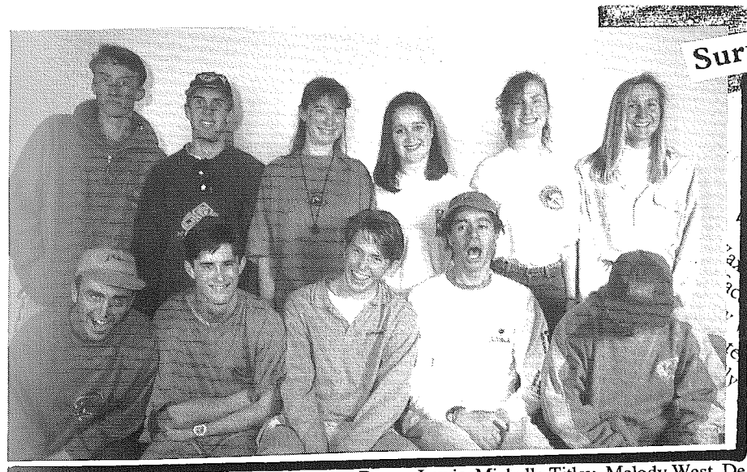

It is impossible to make anything foolproof because fools are so ingenious.

A piece of advice to any female thinking of joining an association such as ours . . . never, under any circumstances, put yourself in charge when staying in a caravan park. I've never picked up more bottles and cigarette butts in all my life, nor tipped out strange substances from pots or been ripped off in so-called fair card games that you've never heard of. By the way Smithy, about the bike . . Frank wants an explanation (ya big Tris!). Sleep was unheard of on trips to the East Coast. By the time everyone had flaked it, Darren was into his full-on snoring sessions and as for Smithy, I hear that the dredges couldn't even clear his sinuses.

The group of us would like to thank Clyde Tuck for his support and interest throughout the year and thanks also must be paid to the students that came along to our ever successful discos. Thanks also to the staff of Y.D. Watersports who supplied us with numerous prizes etc.

Well guys, thanks for the experience and maybe I'll see you in Hawaii or Indo when I can actually stand up on my board!

Surfing

Surfing looks like a lot of fun and it is. Most people graduate from beach swimming to body surfing and then use of surf mats, to surfing using a board. This is a logical progression and a good way to start surfing as those who go straight into surfing without a knowledge of body surfing are often a menace to other surfers.

Catching waves

- lie or sit on your board and watch other surfers for a while
- when you are ready to catch a wave, paddle as it looms up about four metres behind you
- when you feel the tail of the board lift, hold on to the side and straighten your arms to avoid the nose of the board diving
- practise riding the board this way a number of times

LAUNCESTON COLLEGE

As usual, Launceston College has featured heavily in the media this year. Whether the subject was funding or dancing, Launceston College was there.

It is not surprising that Launceston College students make up a fair proportion of articles in Launceston's local newspaper, The Examiner. We are, after all, a fair slice of the community. The musical, academic, artistic and sporting achievements of the student body, both as individuals and in groups, are significant by any standards.

Although articles regarding the individual achievements of students were prevalent, The Examiner has printed articles with references to Launceston College for a variety of other reasons. The Second National Conference on Post Compulsory Education was held at Launceston College this year, attracting media attention. Features on Inter-College Day were printed. The new Radio Production C course, as well as the subsequent opening of the radio studio and production room, made headlines with "Students turn on, tune in as storeroom goes to air". The special national accreditation granted to Tasmanian students successfully completing T.C.E. catering courses made a feature story.

Articles and letters regarding over-crowding, condom vending machines and funding littered The Examiner's pages. "Crowding hits student amenities", "College needs neglected" and "Hooray for condom win", screamed the headlines. These were eventually followed by "Start for...college upgrade", "Lift in college music" and "Funding for work at Launceston College".

Chris White and Andrew Goelst made news when they both won scholarships to the Australian Defence Force Academy in Canberra. Chris was placed third in Australia for a scholarship and intends to undertake a Science degree. Andrew intends to study Civil Engineering.

Cara Bresnehan and Clare Ramsden are two of the students featured for their musical achievements in 1992, just as Anita Roach was featured for her selection in the first Tasmanian indoor netball team to be selected. These are but a few of the many individual students making news with their commendable personal achievements.

"3000 see Launceston College win - Rock magic!" was The Examiner's claim for their article on the 1992 Be Your Best 7LA Rock Eisteddfod at the Silverdome. There is little doubt that the Rock Eisteddfod is the greatest display of Launceston College's school spirit, limited though it may be, to occur each year. After winning the State title in 1991 and running up in 1992, Launceston College's entry in 1993 is sure to be a real stunner!

Finally, The Examiner ran a series of articles on a variety of controversial issues entitled "The Edge", written by Launceston College students. These focused on such issues as condom vending machines, the decriminalisation of homosexuality and Aboriginal land rights claims.

IN THE NEWS

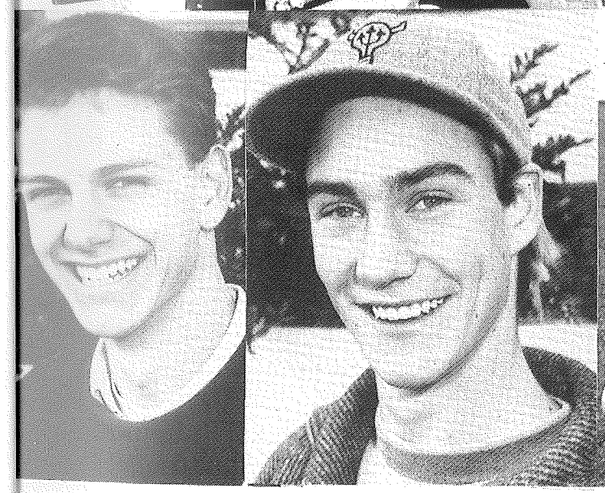

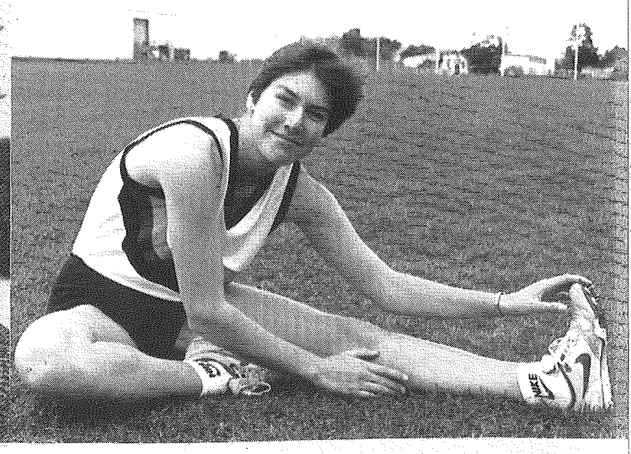

Eighty per cent of all people consider themselves to be above average drivers.

THE FORTUNE

The hardened mixture of flour and water,
Crumbles and cracks in eager, shaking hands.
Flakes of biscuit float gracefully,
From side to side,
Down to the ground.

Clumsy fingers ease
The 'insert with protective coating', from its edible hidey-hole.
Red, swollen, tired eyes,
Scan the fluctuating black ink:

"Serious trouble will by-pass you"

Eyes blink tears of disappointment.
The husk of biscuit is tossed away.
Hands reach for the next fortune cookie.
Hands break, they pull, eyes read.
The body groans with disappointment.

The body will always groan with disappointment.

THE SPARROWS

To the park he comes each day,
His clothes all tattered and torn.
In one hand he carries his dreams
In a ratty old bag
That has seen better days.
In the other he carries a small paper bag
And each day on the same bench he sits.

The only friends he has are the sparrows.
As the people rush past him,
These words they would hear him say,
"Food for the sparrows, my lady,
Food for the sparrows, sir."
Around him they would fly,
Hungry for the food he tossed.
On the hard winter ground
These words they would hear,
"Food for the sparrows."

The cold of winter gave away
To the warmth of spring.
He comes to the park no more,
As the sparrows fly around.
They know that he sleeps the long sleep.
In death he will be forgotten
As he was forgotten in life.
In time the sparrows will forget him.

BUS STOP

At the bus stop she sat.
"I've missed my bus,"
casually she said,
hugging her folder for warmth.
She stared at nothing,
seeing all.
Opens a book, begins to read.
Imagination dwells
in the depths of a silence.
She, turning the page,
across the street calls,
"Guess what?"
as she starts conversation with a stranger.
Ends conversation
with a smile.
Turning round she looks for something,
looks at me, a briefest moment.
She wore a red scarf.
She wears it still.
A total stranger
with a statement to say,
"Oh, wow, I've missed the bus!"
and it didn't sound stupid.

A GUY IN THE BUS

A guy in the bus
looks through her.
An image is caste in his mind
and stays there.
He looks back and he sees her
and changes his mind.

The girl in the street has long hair.
It hangs down her back.
She's in black.
Look in her mind and its darkness.
Black, look back.

She searches her mind
for her conscience,
the her that she's left.
Ghost in her mind
held in the memories of men.

The guy in the bus
gets off,
walks back.
He's caught.
She's empty.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Marianne Wiese, Denmark

Bungy jumping in Queensland, eating witchety grubs in Alice Springs and climbing Ayers Rock are experiences some could only dream of. However, for Marianne Wiese during her recent stay in Australia they became reality.

The Danish exchange student came to Tasmania in August 1991. One year later on her return to Denmark, Marianne had not only fallen in love with the Tasmanian landscape - differing somewhat to the flat plains in Denmark - but the Tasmanian people, whom she describes as, "much more friendly and open than people on the mainland".

For Marianne, who for the past seventeen years has never experienced anything but a white Christmas, 30 degree heat on Christmas Day and sunbaking in January were also highlights of her year in Tasmania.

Looking back, Marianne remembers many of the embarrassing moments she had with English when first arriving, "I made some stupid mistakes in the beginning. People would just laugh at me". According to Marianne she also had a number of other "interesting" experiences while in Tasmania but with Churinga being the annual school magazine she was not willing to elaborate further. However, Marianne does say that one of the best parts of being an exchange student was that she somehow managed to get out of things, in particular, trouble, and as most teachers "felt sorry" for her they would often let her do anything she pleased. Seriously though, Marianne says the most enjoyable aspect about her visit to Tasmania was all the friends she made as an exchange student.

For those of you who did have a chance to meet and get to know Marianne and were totally heartbroken when she returned to Denmark, don't despair! If she has her way, she'll be back in no time. In fact the potential for yet another sunbaking session this January looks highly possible indeed.

Doug Williams, an exchange student from California, attended Launceston College at the beginning of the year. During his six months in Australia Churinga managed to catch up with him.

What was one of the first differences you noticed between America and Australia?
"You guys drive on the other side of the road."

Did anything about Tasmania shock you?
"Yeah, in America I'm still at high school, but you're already at college."

What Aussie food do you like?
"Meat Pies."

What do you really like about Australia?
"The scenery ... ah ... cricket and you have nice food."

How did you find Australians?
"Friendly ... nicer than Americans."

If you were to describe your time in Australia in one word, what would it be?
"QUICK!!!"

Can you understand Aussie talk easily?
"Yeah, I found a few words hard though!"

Would you come back again?
"Yeah, definitely, with my family or with friends."

What, to you, is the most striking thing about Australians?
"They're easy going ... laid back."

Well, thank you very much for your time, we hope you enjoy the rest of your time here.

By Amanda Priddle

Finnish exchange student Katriina Rautiainen, 16, has been attending Launceston College since July 1992 and will be here until June 1993.

What do you think of Australian guys?
"They're alright. They talk much more to girls than they do in Finland".

What do you think of Australian slang?
"In Finland we don't speak English so it's hard to understand."

Nick De Marco, 16, is an exchange student from Ohio in the United States. He will live the life of a Tasmanian teenager until June 1993.

What do you think about Australian girls?
"They're easy going, more natural - I like it better."

What's some of the Australian slang you've noticed?
"No worries; fair dinkum; bloody oath, bloody this, bloody that ... How ya going?"

Elizabeth Lipski, U.S.A.

"The people (in Australia) are a lot nicer. You can walk down the street and people don't shove you out of the way. People are more open here."

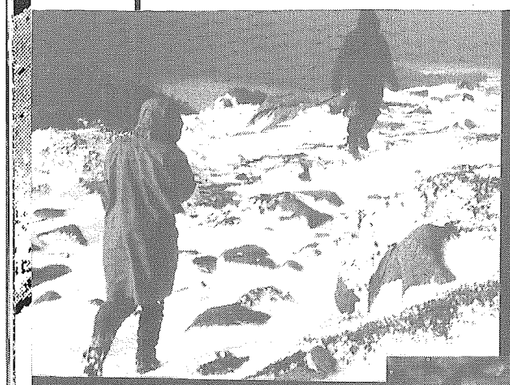

Karen Nielsen, 18, from Denmark attended Launceston College from mid 1991 until July 1992.

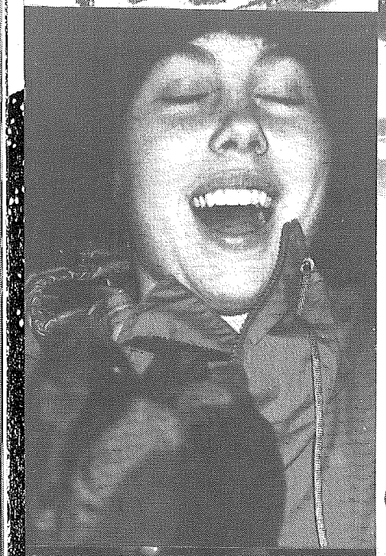

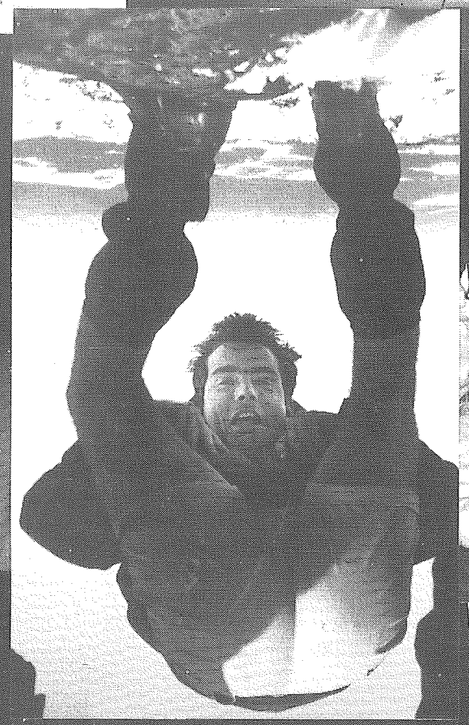

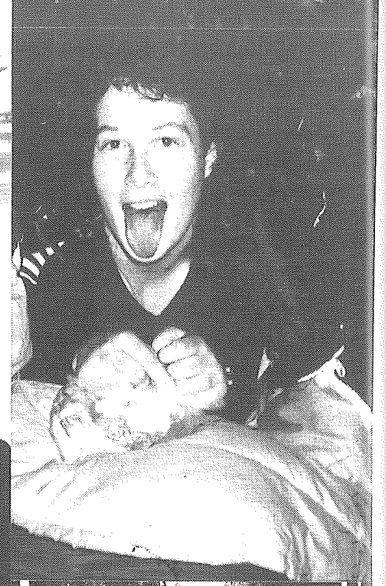

Why did you decide to come to Australia?
"To Europeans Australia is very mysterious and is still undiscovered. It is very young compared to Europe. My brother has been here too and he made it sound very interesting."

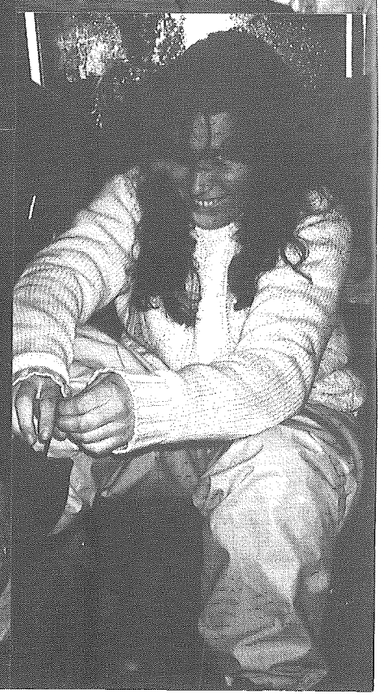

What did you know about Australia before coming here?
"Where it was and when I thought of Australia I would think of kangaroos, the bush and barbeques."

What will you miss most about Tasmania when you return home?
"My friends and how easy going Australians are. Most people have such a good attitude to things."

MT. BULLER

Once upon a time there was a mountain, a rather innocent and unsuspecting mountain it was. Buller was its name and attracting ski-freak idiots was its game.

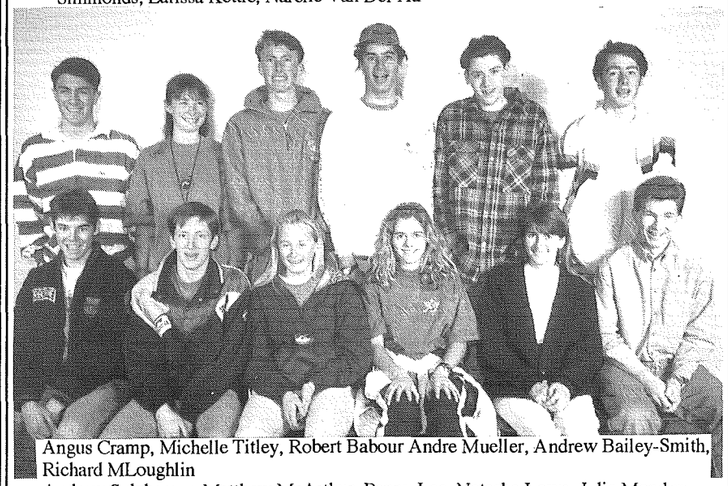

Early in September a certain group of ski-freak idiots from Hell (originating from Launceston College) invaded this poor little mountain's slopes. It was never to be the same again.

The first leg of the journey for this group of enthusiastic ski-freaks was the Abel Tasman joy-ride. Due to the rough seas and high winds dinner was served twice; once in the restaurant , then later once again in cabins and sinks all around the ship.

The next leg of the journey was not so traumatic - except for those who suffer the effects of travelling on a bus for four hours. The enthusiasm of the ski-freaks died a little when they arrived at the Alzburg Inn and met the owner ...Pat. The ski-freaks survived their meeting with Pat and still had enough energy left to hit the slopes of majestic Mt. Buller. Some of us hit it a little harder than others!

Reputation has it that Mt. Buller is a majestic mountain... but we wouldn't know, because there were these bloody persistent clouds hanging over it all the time that we were there. Forget about a glimpse of the majestic mountain - we couldn't see two metres in front of us! Now let's put this in context - you have one very enthusiastic group of skiers who are overwhelmed by the sheer size of the mountain, let alone its runs, and for four days they couldn't see where they were skiing, or more importantly, who or what they were running into. For most of the skiers the saviour was the red numbered poles, better known as access roads that guided the poor lost souls around the mountain.

Another saviour was the warmth and edible delights that Spurs restaurant offered, even if they charged like a roaring beginner for a lousy four-and-twenty pie. And for those who had sore thumbs, legs, bums, arms, brains and egos, there were the shops at The Village to keep them occupied... and broke.

Despite pathetic visibility,

reports were that "Buller had the best snow cover for forty years." And we were there to make the most of it. There was snow on the slopes, the trees, the chairlifts, in our hair, in our gloves, and for those who can perform face plants, there was snow up noses and in mouths. The best thing to do was to follow the advice from a permanent resident of The Village: "If it's not white don't ski it."

Of course for some, things became a little mundane. The chairlifts for instance - one innovative (and absolutely suicidal) method to get off was to simply drop mid-way up the mountain onto a black run (for advanced skiers only). If you can perform this amazing feat successfully then, as a sign of respect, the prefix 'psycho' comes before your name. Of course there are bonus points for those who do the jump when a teacher is seated not just two rows back on the same chairlift.

Skiing was not the only item on the social agenda at Mt. Buller. There was a pool and a spa for those who wanted to relieve their aching muscles after a day on the slopes (but you have to be out of there before 9:30!). There were also tennis courts and a games room... fun, fun, fun. Most resorted to cabin room games, i.e. shaving cream fights, shampoo fights and 'throw everything that's wet' fights. Then there were meal times.

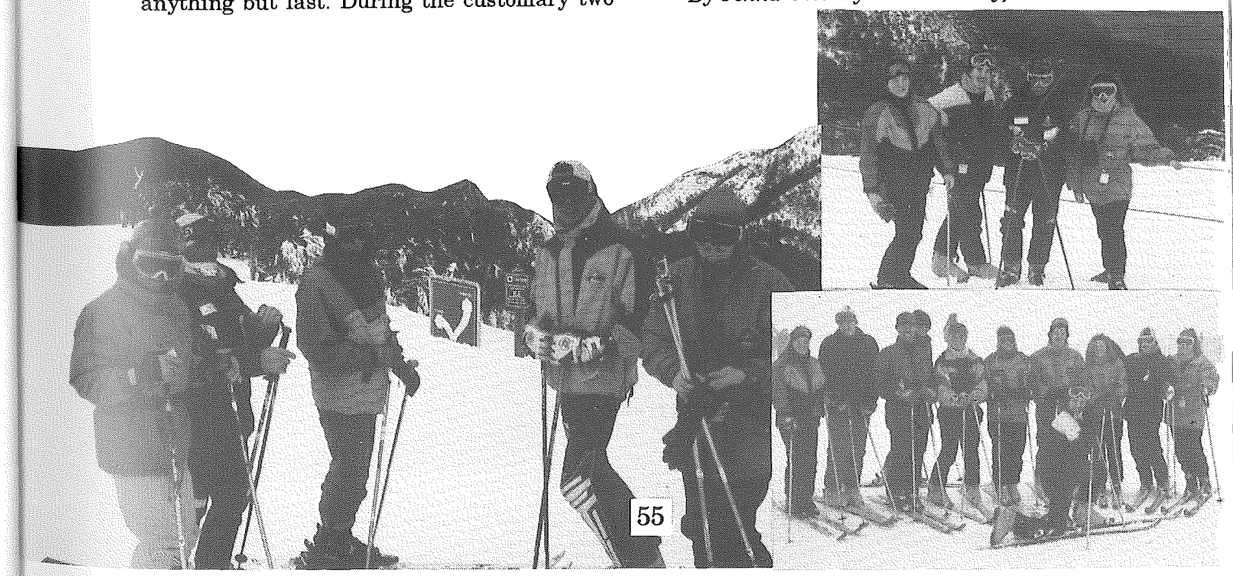

Considering that there were 250 people to feed (and five vegetarians from Launceston College) the food was... well the accommodation was an improvement. The parents will be happy to know that it was not 'fast food' that we were eating. In fact it was anything but fast. During the customary two hour wait for dinner students were encouraged to throw ice and glasses of water, create pretty designs with their serviettes, jump the food lines (and generally annoy Pat, and the teachers).

Unfortunately, we only had one group which participated in the Karaoke night (the Rogue Mongrels from Hell), and with sunglasses and back to front clothes (Kriss Kross style), they went O.K. We laughed.

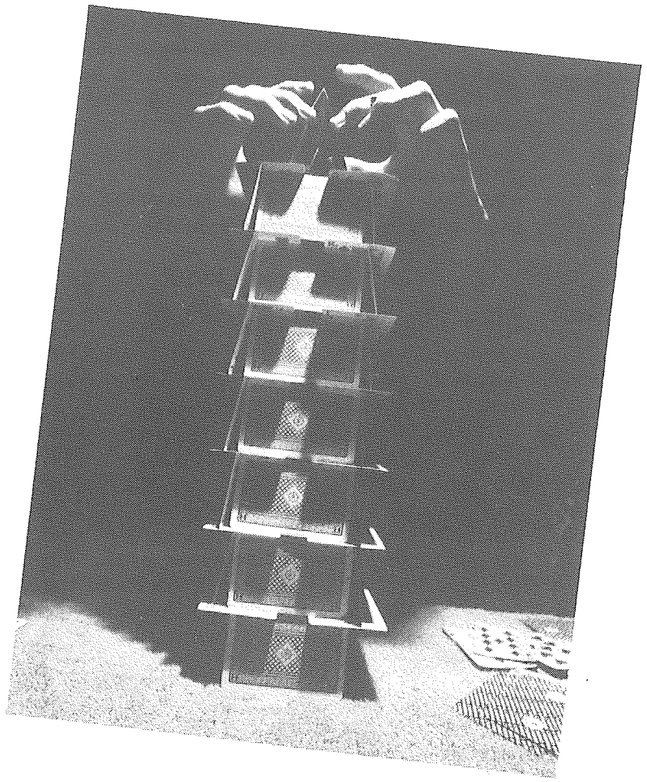

Before we boarded that lovely Abel Tasman once again, we were let loose in the city of Melbourne, bankcards and cash in hand. Sportsgirl has never had such great sales without holding an official sale. Portmans did well too, as did various CD and sports stores. By a sheer stroke of luck, Myer had a 15% off day! Wow! They must have known we were coming! Dads also did well in Melbourne that day, when many shoppers took the opportunity to shop for Father's Day (any excuse).

Pat (the Alzburg Inn Manager), congratulated us on our mature behaviour, as we made our departure, and so did the bus driver. This made the teachers think, "Wow, these kids have been really good for this trip. Just so that nothing happens now to spoil it, let's ban them from all the worthwhile entertainment centres on the ship." But these students did not give up. A sit-down demonstration protest was staged in the Foyer - but to no avail. The teachers had it their way. We remained the perfect group of enthusiastic ski-freaks to take to that majestic mountain (which we never actually saw) - Mt. Buller.

WINGS

I have sprouted my wings
And they are drying in the wind.
I test them out.
Can I fly?
I will never know
Unless I jump.
My heart pounds within my chest.
Can I go solo?
I reason within myself.
I must take the risk
To ride the thermals.
But wait -
A hand is holding me back.
That hand has supported me,
Loved me,
Scolded me
For many years.
It has been a strong foundation,
But now it is time to let go.
There is a silent struggle.
I am ready to go
I must take the risk
And ride the thermals.
The hand won't let me!
I struggle,
I twist,
I scream.
Exhausted, I relax
And gently,
Slowly,
Peacefully,
The hand releases me.
The hand was not a hand of Punishment,
The hand of
Suffocation,
The hand of Restraint.
It was the hand of love.
I fly a solo flight.

THE DROWNING

A green slimy body of water
And the lush, green growth of a paddock's grass.
The young chick knew no difference.
Ignorantly, innocently
It stepped from the grass to the water
SPLASH.
The slimy water enveloped its small and weak
body,
Weighing down its once light and agile appendages.
Ripples in the water,
A muffled squawk,
Drenched wings frantically flapping,
The strain of a young beak gasping.
Help me please...
Sinking lower into the green depths, sinking.
Help me...
Slower now, flap, flap...flap...
Help...

Sinking, gasping, flapping, drowning.

Drowned.

Dead.

SIX YARDS

I was born into a six yard shield,
Clung to it as a babe in arms.
Crawling I followed the spirals,
My world shaped by its patterns.
I was rocked by dancing dolls.
Dived in turquoise waters.
Often hid in flower gardens.
Played peek-a-boo with little dots.
These long silken yards were
My cradle,
My shelter,
My home.
Their tender fabric wiped my tears,
Shared my dreams,
Taught me right from wrong.
My grandma was my rock.
She wore a sari six yards long.

anyone could've slept in my bed,
anyone could've crumpled the sheets,
turned my electric blanket off
because it was too hot for 2, anyone could've left his socks on the floor,
switched the bedside lamp off
and stared at the glowing red numerals
of the clock in the dark,
studied my star sign,
picked at the flaking hole in the wall,
sipped the water in his glass,
breathed in the "Vick's" that I put on his handkerchief,
slept restlessly with me
in my bed; the whole night long,

JARDIN de CRISTAL 1

In my garden, we danced by the light of the moon.
In my garden we watched the jade birds swoop
And the ivory fish glide in the mahogany pool.
In my garden, we made the commonest things precious.
In my garden we saw the sun rise and set all at once.
In my garden the cries of a child were turned to song.
We saw the winter come, together
In my garden,
The snow that fell like mink,
The ice that laced the sky protectively.
The whole world loved us, held us close
In my garden.
In my garden, the tree of life bloomed all year round
And you and I
Ate the fruit of the tree of knowledge
Night and day.

STATE REPRESENTATIVES

This year Launceston College can boast a number of highly talented students who through their dedication and commitment to a particular field have gained state selection. Many a time throughout 1992 these students - in both sporting and academic areas - have displayed the remarkably high level of ability and talent that can be found here in our College.

Special mention should be given to Barry Brannan who was not only given the chance to represent Tasmania but the whole of Australia at the International Informatics Olympiad in Bonn, Germany. Barry was one of only three Australians selected to go.

StateRepresentatives this year were:

Scott Auton - Basketball

Adrian Batten - Orienteering

Scott Bennett - U/17 Cricket

Barry Brannan - National Representative at the International Olympiad Informatics (Germany)

Cara Bresnehan - Runner Up in the Tasmanian final of the Plain English Speaking Awards

Zane Carr - Australian Schools Cross Country Team, Launceston College "Burnie 10" team - 1st in the Schools Section

Chee Fai Chan - CRA National Science Summer School 1993

Geoffrey Chandler - Launceston College "Burnie 10" team - 1st in the Schools Section

Gus Clarke - Skiing

Leah Clayton - Spoke to the National Council of Women in Launceston about "Life in the 90's...A Positive Perspective"

Emma Clement - U/19 National All Schools Cross Country (Alice Springs)

Jason Dalco - Launceston College "Burnie 10" team - 1st in the Schools Section

Cameron Daniels - Launceston College "Burnie 10" team - 1st in the Schools Section

Sam Denmead - U/18 Womens Basketball

Amanda Inman - Weightlifting (Equal national record holder in the 48kg class)

Ben Inman - Weightlifting (67.5 kg class)

Matthew Lethborg - Football, U/17 Teal Cup

Damien Liddell - Weightlifting (67.5 kg class)

Matthew McArthur - Skiing

Zac McArthur - Tasmanian Ski Racing Team, State Open Slalom Champion

Clinton Moloney - Awarded the ANZAAS Travel Scholarship (One of five selected in Tasmania), CRA National Science Summer School 1992

Andre Mueller - Skiing

Stuart Midgley - CRA National Science Summer School 1992, CRA National Mathematics Summer School 1992

Mark Nutting - U/17 Cricket

Simon Obendorf - Selected to attend the Queen's Trust 1992 National Capital Seminar (Canberra)

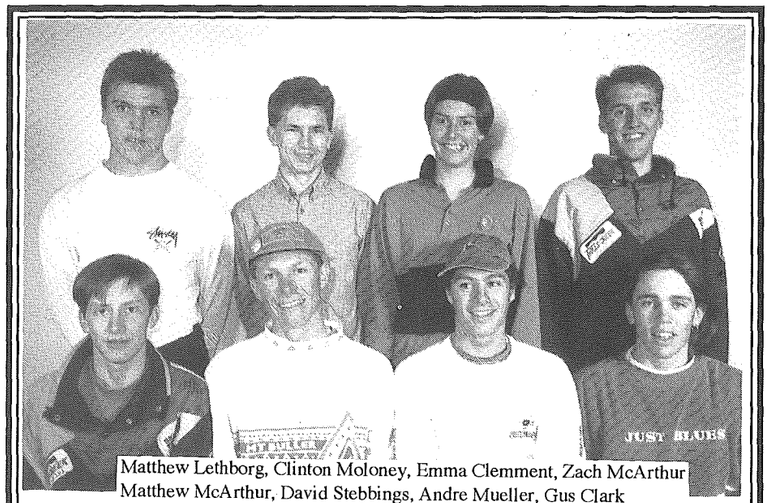

Georgia Palmer - Womens Touch Football

John Ralph - Australian Weightlifting Champion (110 kg class)

Matthew Smith - Weightlifting (75 kg class)

You know it's going to be a bad day when... your car horn goes off accidentally and remains stuck as you follow a group of Hell's Angels down the Southern Outlet.

ROCK GROUPS

SEX.....

Now that I have your limited attention span, perhaps you would care to indulge in a little light reading on what perhaps may be the most focused group of artistic talent ever assembled since The Muppets' theme song. Those valiant, dedicated, yet strident popinjays of the musical world, the Rock Studies classes, have been tantalizing concert patrons around the world. Their music has touched the hearts of many and undoubtedly will affect a generation.

Thanks to the unceasing and tireless work of our noble benefactors, Ian "The Toffster, Bass Man, De La Funky Homo Sapien" Reitoff and his stunningly glamorous compadre and fellow educator of a noble profession, WENDY, the Rock Music students have far overwhelmed the necessary requirements. In fact, as a whole they have staged concerts in the drama centre and Twains that have reached capacity crowds as well as maintaining standards of excellence expected of musicians of their calibre.

I bid farewell to these Bards of a modern age and wish them every success in all their endeavours. SALUT!!!

JAPANESE VISIT L.C.

For most of the month of August fifteen Japanese teenagers from Kochi in Japan were treated to life as an Australian as part of an exchange visit with this school. This is the second year that the highly successful exchange has taken place between the sister city of Kochi and students of Launceston College.

Students studying Japanese at LC were given the unique opportunity of hosting a Japanese student for about three weeks, in the hope that friendships would be formed and families would learn about Japan and its culture. The Japanese students, ranging in age from fifteen to seventeen, had been learning English for roughly five years and by the the end of their stay their English speaking skills had improved remarkably. Similarly, the LC hosts benefitted greatly from having the experience of practising their Japanese on real Japanese people.

Activities were arranged for the students during the week and on weekends host families entertained their additional family member. Despite the dismal weather of August the students managed to see different attractions of the Northern region and also travelled as a group to Hobart for three days. Naturally many amusing situations arose as English was translated poorly into Japanese and vice versa and as the Japanese encountered strange Australian customs. One young Japanese girl remarked after seeing some pretty flowers, "Yum!" Apparently she'd heard her host sister say yum after seeing a particularly attractive male on the television and assumed yum was used to describe beautiful things. A pair of inexpensive jeans was described by one LC student as being vegetables instead of being cheap and another LC host said she wanted to become a piece of toast!

The co-ordinator of the visit from this end was Japanese teacher, John Thompson, who was assisted by Angie Dicker and Col Lane. Not only did John do a superb job at arranging families and activities for the Japanese students, but he also stole the hearts of all the Japanese girls. Maybe they will one day forget their host families and the friends they made while in Launceston, but never will they forget John! When John arrived late at the airport the day the Japanese students left Launceston, a murmur could be heard among all the lovesick girls..."John's here, John's here!"

The visit was an interesting experience for everyone involved with the exchange and many memories have been made. Some people may never see each other again, but some lucky hosts will see their Japanese visitor at the end of this year, when fifteen students from LC travel to Kochi to spend three weeks there in December.

CLASSIC

Do you ever have days when things just don't come out right? Some of you out there certainly do, because during the year we have collected some of the most quotable quotes ever to pass the lips of Homo sapiens. For the purpose of softening the blow of embarrassment, surnames have been omitted - our pity extends to those with obscure or uncommon names!

"I wake up at around six thirty in the morning when my alarm clock turns me on!"
-Clinton

"Okay, so listen to the music with one ear and write with the other."
-Carolyn

"For those of you who want to know, we'll be having a surprise test soon."
-Steve
"When?"
-Gilbert

"Is Banjo Paterson still alive?"
-Melody

"The early bird catches the early worm."
-Bernd

"You're not getting it because you're thinking like a female."
-Bernd

"It looked like big things of snot coming out of the wall."
-Bernd

"He is but a pork chop on the Jewish barbecue of life."
-Nelle

"He was incompetent...how could she be pregnant?"
-Jeremy

"I'm just naturally big from mini-league."(Hmmm...)
-Jeremy

"I'm not homosexual - I just wish to be more feminine."
-Ben

"Hold on a sec. I can't get my little wick up."
-Stuart

"Maybe Col's like Fairlie Arrow. He's faked his own mugging, and now he's working in a strip joint!"
-Stuart

QUOTES®

"They all promised not to promise what everybody else was promising (in reference to the S.R.C. Election Speeches)."
-Kent

"Adam's jeans are a restrictive trade practice."
-Kate
"That depends on whom I'm trading with!"
-Adam

"The worst thing I ever drank was kerosene - I thought it was lemonade."
-Sandra

"I'd hate to be so stoned that hamburgers started talking to me (when referring to a certain McDonald's advertisement)!"
-Chris

"So if you're slowing down when you're going in a negative direction, then you're actually speeding up?"
-Malcolm

"A clean board is a happy board."
-Steve

"I'm no good at these things (surveys), they're too hard!"
-Jane

"Self Defence : Meet Simon Pagel and Michael Gee in the College Pool."
-Student Information Sheet, 13/5/92

"That's the only thing the S.R.C.'s done all year - move the video machine."
-Stewart

"How old is Carl Lewis?"
-Natalie
"He must be at least 12 - he's been to three Olympics!"
-Jackie

"I think I've murdered the washing basket! I was only trying to sail it across the swimming pool."
-Belinda

"You don't need fun to have alcohol!"
-Richard

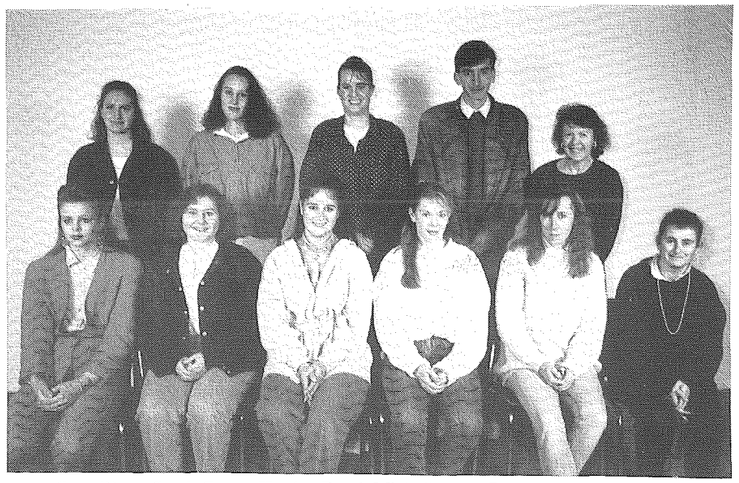

"Don't worry, Karen. Mine's bulging too!"
-Merlin

Theatre Performance

The experimental theatre presentation "...A NORMAL WOMAN?" was devised by these students in order to explore the perceptions of women in our society. They chose to use excerpts from scripted dramas as the major pieces of material in the show because, as theatre is a reflection of societal attitudes and values, they could present views of women past and present.

ATHLETE IMPROVEMENT

INTRODUCTION

There were 106 athletes involved in this year's Athlete Improvement Programme. The eight teams in the programme - each specialising in either Basketball, Volleyball, Netball, Cricket, Golf or Weightlifting - have trained hard throughout the year for local rosters, state and national championships and annual events such as Inter-College Day held earlier on in June. This year, as always, many of the individuals in the programme have not only improved remarkably in their chosen sports but have achieved personal bests and gained selection at both state and national levels. This year, Weightlifting, for example, has seen Amanda Inman unofficially break the Australian record, John Ralph win a national title and others in the team win State Championships. Although the Weightlifting team has had obvious success throughout 1992, it is not alone. The other seven teams in the programme have also performed commendably and achieved high standards during the course of the year. Congratulations go out to all the AIP squad members, as their innumerable successes throughout 1992 are evidence of their obvious talent and dedication in their chosen sports.

CRICKET

This year so far has been very successful for the Coca-Cola Launceston College Cricket squad.

A major plus for us was the obtaining of a sponsorship package from the Coca-Cola company. All squad members have been given a Coca-Cola training shirt as a result of this sponsorship.

For our first match in the Gillette Cup All Schools Cricket Championships we travelled to Latrobe to take on Don College. We left Latrobe with a fairly easy win and advanced to the second round. Next we trekked to the Wivenhoe ground at Burnie to play Hellyer College. To our amazement the ground was in the middle of a Harness Racing track. After a few anxious moments we came away with a win. We also had renewed faith in the ability of "Risty's" hurling technique. The public school's final was next on the agenda. This was to be played against Hobart College in Hobart. We were all hyped up for this game and ready to advance to the State Final against the private school champions. And advance is what we did in rather grand style. After a slow start, some "controlled hitting" by Ian Robertson and Anthony Rist (they called it this, the rest of us called it slogging) set us up for a very good target to defend. We eventually won by the slender margin of 110 runs. The highlight of this trip, however, was the cards belonging to Robert Moore which were used on the way back. Our coach, Gary Goodman, certainly loved judging the winners when a tie resulted.

After taking a course in coaching over the winter we are all ready to get back into the swing of things and take on the winner of St Virgils v's Grammar. A win in this game will take us to Canberra to represent the State in the Gillette Cup All Schools Australian Championships.

During the course of the year a number of squad members have been chosen in State underage squads. Congratulations to the following players:

Under 17 - Scott Bennet, Mark Nutting.

Under 19 - Roy Peters, Anthony Rist, Robert Moore

We would like to thank Gary Goodman for coaching us this year and also Tim Coyle for his assistance and advice given to us. And also Jill Couch for teaching some of us how to type up letters in quicker time than two hours.

By Matthew Hayes

GOLF

1992 has been another successful year for the Golf team. With a total of eleven team members from a wide range of Northern clubs, quite a lot of good performances were put in throughout the year.

The team included: Drew Hallam (captain), Paul Wootton, Mark Smith, Scott McDonald, Simon Davey, Matt Colgrave, Grant Orpwood, Allistair Trellogen, Matt McGeorge, Anthony Rist and Marcus Rigby. Every handicap within the team was reduced throughout the course of the year. This 1992 team was probably the strongest Golf team since the inception of the program in 1988. At the end of the year the team included four players with handicaps of five or less.

Paul Wootton was undoubtedly the best golfer of 1992 as he represented Tasmania in a junior tournament in Queensland earlier this year. Paul also won the Northern Junior Championship and Students Championship and had numerous other good performances throughout the State during the year.

Special thanks go to the coach, Brian Fitzgerald, of the Riverside Golf Club who helped all of the team a great deal.

Jason (Ice Man) Connel, Michael Bakes, Kyle Crawford - Alias 'Hector the Rejector Fiona Burgess, Trevor McLeod, Shane Bracey Michelle Tarr

The future is looking bright for 1993 with a number of quality young players expected to enrol at Launceston College.

By Drew Hallam

NETBALL

Netball this year has had its ups and downs but what would one expect with enough girls to make up two teams?

To start the year off, we had done enough training for a dozen matches so we were glad when Term Two arrived.

Inter-College Day was our first tournament. We entered two teams - one in Division 1A and the other in Division 1B. This turned out to be a great day. We didn't do too badly, having Division 1A second and Division 1B fourth.

We then played in the Judy Lutwyche tournament in Burnie. We sent two teams. We won most of our games but we were unable to play in the finals as we were there on invitation. Unlucky wasn't it, but hey at least we did get a certificate for participating.

We played in the All Schools Championships. Apparently it was a pretty rough day as the team would rather not talk about it. Oh well, that's about it for the year, but we can't complain, we did play in three tournaments.

By Anita Roach

MENS BASKETBALL

The Mens Basketball team had a surprisingly successful year, both on and off the court. To many of the players it was the first real taste of severe physical and mental abuse, as it was soon realised that this man, Michael House, our coach for the year, knew how to hurt a person in such a way that a Gestapo agent would be jealous. The team was to be known as the Cavaliers. The team, under the leadership of Duane "get out of my lane" Adcock, even became a finals contender. However, due to unforseen circumstances (losing more games that we should've), we were unable to reach the finals.

The year in essence was a period of growth for many players as Michael and Roxanne (Mrs House) showed many of us that we could, if scared enough, play a decent game of Basketball. Special mentions should also go to Anthony "Who" Goss whose never ending stream of far fetched and forged notes was a constant source of entertainment to all the players. Heath "Head" Butt also deserves a mention as without him who knows what might have happened. We might have made the finals (only joking). Heath was always there if you would risk it for help. Darren Lewis, the first fatality, suffered a pulled heart muscle. He also supplied plenty of support by constantly reminding us of our errors. What about Grant Baxter, yeh what about him?

ATHLETE IMPROVEMENT

PLAYS OF THE YEAR:
1) Michael Bates two weeks before the finals apparently slipping in a toilet cubicle in the gym and breaking his wrist
2) Anthony Goss turning up to training
3) Duane Adcock's two-pointer that was really a pass
4) Scott Alexander passing the ball in a game (only a rumour, no one saw it)
5) Jason Connell and his aggravation of the meanest player in nearly every game
6) Trevor McLeod and his ability to get women
7) Scott Aughton, youngest player at 15 to get married as well as hold most Weet-Bix eaten record at 12 in one morning, not a bad player as well
8) Shane Bracey, animal, true patron of the sport and the oldest player on the team as well as the shortest
9) Bruce Shekleton, as a basketball player he made a good surfer, but one of the hottest streak players on the team, if he ever turned up
10) Matthew Cudmore, legend as well as one of the quiet achievers, would do wonders at BP, Mr Reliability is his middle name, well Rudolf actually
11) Jerry Hollister, a man living in the shadow of his basketball legend father
12) Kyle "Hector the Rejector" Crawford, all class while still being blue collar.

In all we had a good year, one to be remembered by the torture House caused us. We'll realise that all our arthritis was caused by one man. In the end he said he had us all worked out. Maybe he did, but he never could pick a forged shot chart. The team this year was exactly that, a team. 1992 will be the year we put Utah into double overtime and saw what a heap of teachers can pull out in a game, with the aid of two imports. The Cavaliers or Cavs were, in the end, a team that will never be forgotten.

By Kyle Crawford

MENS VOLLEYBALL

The Mens Volleyball team has been quite successful. We made it to the grand final of the Inter-Club Championships but were beaten, two sets to one, by Burnie. It was a good effort by the team as it was our first tournament together as a team. Winning Inter-College Day and coming third in the Mens A Reserve roster have been just some of this year's achievements. During December the whole team plans to travel to Canberra for a Good Neighbour Tournament (National Club Championships) and Commonwealth Bank Cup (National Schools Championships).

By Adrian Gill

WIEIGHTLIFTING

As always the sport of Weightlifting can boast, and believe me we will, more State representatives, State champions and national champions than any other sport in the program. So, in that vein.....

Of those who have been recruited this year, Shane Ritchie shows a level of skill unusual for his experience and has impressed all the right people to be selected for the National Schools team. Although Adam Stebbings and Scott Taylor were not as fortunate, their abilities have been remarked upon glowingly by people such as Olympian Ron Laycock.

As this is a males only competition for the last time this year, Amanda Inman is the only one of the more experienced athletes not accompanying Shane. However, she will go to the national seniors with the knowledge that she has unofficially broken the Australian record and to officially do so and secure the title will make her the most successful athlete the school has seen.

Team stalwart, John Ralph, recently secured the year's first national title, the National Country Championships, a senior event, after missing out by the narrowest of margins in the U/20s earlier in the year, and after winning last years U/18s he will look to the Schools in Melbourne with anticipation.

As does Matthew Smith who, at his sixth national of any description, is after his first gold. Although this may be beyond Ben Inman and Damian Liddell, good performances by the seasoned campaigners will see them as medal contenders.

The rapid development and technical excellence of the athletes in the program can be attributed to the coaching skill of Moscow Olympian Leo Isaac, who is regarded as one of the best coaches in the nation and is the

PROGRAMME

National Coaching Director. The school is lucky to have his services.

After a meeting with the SRC in which the imminent publication of certain photographs was discussed, the SRC decided to provide funds to help pay the airfare to the Nationals. For this we are most grateful.

By Matthew Smith

WOMENS BASKETBALL

This year our team was fortunate to receive not one but two American coaches, Julie and Biwer. It was definitely an experience. It was a real challenge just trying to understand the American language. Finally, we got used to their accents and they to ours and we were on our way. At the beginning of the year anyone would have thought our team was jinxed, by the amount of injuries we had. There were only four players out of twelve who did not get injured at some time!

We trained twice times a week and played Wednesday nights in the Launceston Basketball Association A grade competition. The competition was very tough and it took us a while to settle in but I am sure every single girl in the team learned something from playing in the roster.

This year's team were high hopefuls for the State Championship, as most of last year's State Championship members were in the team. We were faced with a huge problem for the Championships, our "Yankee" coaches were going home and we were stuck without a coach, but luckily Heath Butt came to the rescue. Having holidays just before the Championships did not help much either and we had to cram four trainings into the week prior to the Championships.

Unfortunately we could not meet our expectations and finished third in the Inter-College Day Competition. Generally, it was a very satisfactory year for the team.

WOMENS VOLLEYBALL

This year's Womens Volleyball team, coached by Jill Couch, has once again shown the strength of Volleyball at Launceston College. The team of twelve players has come together to form a winning combination which was evident in the annual secondary schools Inter-College Day held in July. The games played to qualify for the grand final were won quite easily. However, the final against Elizabeth College was a hard fought struggle between both teams, with Launceston College emerging as eventual winners. The team divides up into two teams of six players, both of which play in the local A grade roster, where each team has reached the finals. During this year all players have gained experience and ability. These will prove to be invaluable in Canberra at the National Schools Commonwealth Bank Cup which will be held in December.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At the beginning of this year Churinga was just a dream. We had visions of bringing you the most exciting, the most innovative, the most sensational school magazine ever published. Maybe we didn't quite meet our goal of excellence, but we sure tried our hardest. Lack of time, other school commitments and general disorganisation, prevented us from giving you an absolutely perfect magazine, so if you find some little mistake or glaringly large error, just overlook it because we obviously did! Oh, don't mind any tomato sauce stains on the CA pages. Kent was a little messy with his lunch.

You wouldn't be sitting here reading Churinga right now if it wasn't for the committee of hardworking little Churinga-ites who put this magazine together. Every Wednesday we would meet, planning to do much work and every Wednesday we would achieve little. With only about three weeks to get most of the magazine together, we somehow got our act into gear and produced this lovely collection of the year's memorabilia.

This year's Churinga was produced by:

Layout and design personnel: Sarah Allen, Michelle Beg, Jenna Corkery, Angela East, Kent Fordham, Melissa Fyfe, Andrew Hugo, Bernd Meyer, Amanda Priddle, Catherine Putnam, Sam Routley, Amanda Rushton, Rachael Scott, Kate Silverwood, Nelle Voss, Karen Webb and Belinda Williams.

Typists: Karen Webb and Sue at the office, but everyone pitched in.

Editing Department: Shane How and Amanda Rushton

Apple Mac Desktop Publishing Expert: Clinton Moloney

Photographers: Steve Tully without a doubt. Bernd Meyer also contributed.

Staff assistants: Shane How and Bernd Meyer

Doodler on Contents page: Angela East

Extra thanks and praise must go to Steve Tully for the many, many photographs he supplied us with. 'On ya Steve!' Clinton Moloney was also a saint in single-handedly desktop publishing the entire magazine in such a professional and thorough manner.

Churinga is printed and bound by Regal Press from prepared pages.

" We think this is the best issue of Churinga we have been associated with. Staff involvement and direction were minimal. The magazine is a highly commendable student achievement. " Shane How & Bernd Meyer
